Nations In Accord On Iran

Security Council members unite against nuke program

LONDON | Moscow and Beijing joined the U.S. and its European allies in demanding Monday that Iran fully suspend its nuclear program, while Vladimir Putin held out hope for a compromise, saying Tehran might agree to move its uranium enrichment program to Russia.

China, Russia, France, the United States, Germany and Britain expressed "serious concerns" about Iran's resumption of small-scale uranium enrichment, Britain's Foreign Office said.

The powers stopped short of referring the issue to the U.N. Security Council, which could impose sanctions, instead calling for an emergency board meeting of the International Atomic Energy on Feb. 2-3 to discuss the issue. The 35-nation IAEA board could itself refer the issue to the Security Council.

The stepped-up diplomatic activity came nearly a week after Iran removed U.N. seals at its main uranium enrichment plant and resumed research on nuclear fuel after a two-year hiatus. The move alarmed the West, which fears Iran intends to build an atomic bomb. Iran claims its program is peaceful, and it has threatened to end all cooperation with the U.N. nuclear watchdog if it is brought before the Security Council.

U.S. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice said Sunday she wants a vote as soon as possible on whether to refer Iran to the council and is working to line up support. BETH GARDINER (AP)

INTRUDERS Flash the Heat on Them A Halifax, Nova Scotia, couple awoke Sunday morning to find an intruder heating up their leftover food in their kitchen, the Canadian Press reported. The man tried to restrain the stranger and ended up being punched as the woman called for help. The intruder, a 43-year-old man, was charged with breaking and entering, assault and resisting arrest. He appeared in court Monday. No one was seriously hurt in the scuffle. (EXPRESS) EyeOpeners | Page 2

JURY DUTY

Juvenile Justice

There was a problem when Kaylee Reynolds of Taunton, Mass., received a summons recently to serve on a jury. She wasn't nearly old enough to read it. Reynolds is just 2 years old, giving her 16 more years before she's old enough to be called to jury service. Not to worry, said Massachusetts jury commissioner Pamela Wood: Reynolds will get the grace period. Wood said a mistaken birth date on a census form led to the erroneous summons. Besides her questionable understanding of guilt or innocence, there's another reason to wait for Kaylee to serve: Her mother, Patricia, said Kaylee gets really cranky if she doesn't get her noontime nap. (AP)

DISASTERS

Crash in a Remote Area

After a Vancouver woman reported seeing a plane go down on Sunday, police and paramedics responded to the scene — to find a 4-foot toy aircraft had crashed, the Canadian Press reported. "We sent all our cars down there thinking there was a small ultralight or a small plane that had crashed, but ... it was a model," said a police officer. (EXPRESS)

Ice Cream Break

I scream, you scream, we all scream at 8.7 tons of ice cream. If not screams, the cake — shown while getting its finishing touches Monday — has at least drawn impressed glances, as it became the biggest ice cream cake in the world. A Beijing cake shop took 20 days to complete the monstrous dessert, which was verified as a record by officials from the Guinness Book of Records. The previous record-holder had been put together in Germany. (EXPRESS)

HOME UNIMPROVEMENT

Sure You Don't Want A Huge Skylight?

A Los Angeles home was repaired Thursday after the roof was removed by accident, the Los Angeles Daily News reported. On Jan. 6, employees of Precision Roofing — an unlicensed company — went to the wrong address for a roofing job, and stripped the roof off the house before realizing the mistake. The company then asked the house's owners, the Hodge family, to pay it to fix it — but, instead, the Hodges called police and a lawyer. A different company, Preferred Roofing, ended up doing the repair work. (EXPRESS)

Atlanta mayor says city has obligation to fight for social justice

ATLANTA | With the widow of Martin Luther King Jr. absent for the first time in nearly four decades, preachers and politicians urged people Monday to continue the slain leader's lifelong pursuit of civil rights and nonviolence.

On the holiday marking King's birth, some speakers used the pulpit of Atlanta's Ebenezer Baptist Church to criticize the Iraq war, saying money being used by the military overseas could be better spent domestically on projects such as education, especially for blacks.

Atlanta Mayor Shirley Franklin said the city has a particular obligation to preserve King's "legacy of fighting for social and econom-home and watched the ceremonies on television. It was the first time in 38 years she has missed the service at the church where King preached from 1960 until his death in 1968. She received a standing ovation Saturday night when she appeared

Ex-President Ford In Calif. Hospital

RANCHO MIRAGE, CALIF. | Former President Ford was undergoing treatment for pneumonia Monday at the same facility where he was briefly hospitalized a month ago, his chief of staff said. He was said to be doing well.

Ford, 92, was admitted Saturday to Eisenhower Medical Center near his home in Rancho Mirage in Southern California, Penny Circle said.

"Based on his age it is prudent for his initial course of treatment — IV antibiotics — to be done at the hospital," Circle told The Associated Press.

Ford was expected to be released from the hospital Wednesday or Thursday, she said.

Ford was admitted to the hospital Dec. 12 and left the next day. Circle said at the time that Ford had undergone a regularly scheduled health exam but noted that he also had been battling a bad cold. (AP)

Gore Blasts Domestic Wiretap Program

WASHINGTON | Former Vice President Al Gore called Monday for an independent investigation of President Bush's domestic spying program, contending the president "repeatedly and insistently" broke the law by eavesdropping on Americans without court approval.

Gore was interrupted repeatedly by applause as he called the anti-terrorism program "a threat to the very structure of our government."

Gore charged that the administration acted without congressional authority and made a "direct assault" on a special federal court that authorizes requests to eavesdrop on Americans. One judge on the court resigned last month, voicing concerns about National Security Agency surveillance. (AP)

Pluto Probe Set for Launch

NASA New Horizons mission will send first craft to icy outer planet

CAPE CANAVERAL, FLA. | An unmanned NASA spacecraft is set to lift off Tuesday on a nine-year journey to Pluto, the last unexplored planet in the solar system.

Scientists hope to learn more about the icy planet and its large moon, Charon, as well as two other moons in orbit around Pluto.

The $700 million New Horizons mission also will study the surrounding Kuiper Belt, the mysterious zone of the solar system that is believed to hold thousands of comets and other icy objects. It could hold clues to how the planets were formed.

Nazi-Looted Art Ruled to Calif. Family

VIENNA, AUSTRIA | The Austrian government is legally obliged to turn over five precious paintings by Gustav Klimt to a California woman who says the Nazis stole them from her family, according to a ruling by a Vienna arbitration court.

At stake in Maria Altmann's seven-year struggle for ownership are works that have been on display for decades in Vienna's Belvedere castle — including a portrait of her aunt, "Adele Bloch-Bauer I," that is one of the most famous and valuable of all Klimt's works.

The pictures have been estimated

Panel: focus on music and culture vital to New Orleans' revival

NEW ORLEANS | While New Orleans builds better levees and new homes, a mayoral arts commission is recommending that the city not forget to reclaim its legacy as the birthplace of jazz.

The commission recommends building a National Jazz Center, which would be a museum, performance hall, recording studio and archive.

The recommendations — which were to be presented to Mayor Ray Nagin on Tuesday — also call for creating new artistic districts, increasing the teaching of arts in schools and setting aside 2 percent of eligible capital bonds for public sculptures, murals and other artwork.

The ideas are part of a broad rebuilding plan being rolled out by the Bring New Orleans Back Commission, a panel appointed by Nagin after Hurricane Katrina hit.

On the cultural side, the commission's recommendations tackle a long-standing complaint: that New Orleans has done a miserable job in promoting itself as the birthplace of jazz, the quintessential American form of art.

Many important buildings in jazz history have fallen into disrepair or tumbled down. Even the home of Louis Armstrong was demolished.

The report also endorses a plan to preserve several old buildings on Rampart Street associated with jazz greats and turn them into a jazz park.

Iran Bars CNN Over Mistranslation of Remarks

Iran said Monday it is barring CNN from working in Iran "until further notice" due to its mistranslation of comments made by the president in a recent news conference about the country's nuclear research. On Saturday, President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad defended Iran's right to continue nuclear research. State media have complained since the speech that CNN used the translation "nuclear weapons" instead of "nuclear technology." (AP)

20 Die in Afghan Suicide Bombing

Man drives motorbike into holiday crowd in latest surge of violence

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | A suicide attacker with explosives strapped to his body drove a motorbike into a holiday crowd watching a wrestling match in an Afghan border town, killing at least 20 people and wounding more than 30 others.

Monday's attack was the bloodiest in a recent wave of suicide assaults and the third deadly blast in two days in the southern province of Kandahar, the former Taliban stronghold.

Earlier, President Hamid Karzai warned that Afghanistan could again become a staging post for terrorist strikes in Europe and America if international support wavers.

four months — a relatively new tactic for militants here, stoking fears of more suicide assaults modeled on those in Iraq.

In Monday's violence, an unidentified man blew himself up after driving into a crowd of about 100 wrestling fans watching a bout at a fair held for the Muslim holiday of Eid al-Adha in the town of Spinboldak, a key crossing point into Pakistan.

"The motorcycle went up into the air in flames," said Abdul Samad, who was in the crowd and fled in terror along with hordes of panicked spectators. "It was like doomsday ... Some did not have their hands; others had their legs missing."

Kandahar provincial Gov. Asadullah Khalid said 20 people were killed and at least 30 more wounded. He claimed the suicide attackers had trained in Pakistan.

The motorbike assault came just hours after a bomb attack on a convoy of Afghan army trucks loaded with troops in the provincial capital of Kandahar, killing four people and wounding 16. On Sunday, a suicide car bomb in the same city killed a senior Canadian diplomat and two Afghan civilians. (AP)

THAILAND | MONKS STAGE BEER PROTEST

Kim Jong Il Rides in Style on 'Secret' Trip

BEIJING | He could be China's worst-kept secret.

A VIP believed to be North Korean leader Kim Jong Il spent nearly a week in the heart of China's booming south, touring high-tech companies in a possible search for ideas to revive his nation's economy.

China's government won't confirm he is in the country. But if it is Kim, he picked an awkward way to avoid publicity, taking over an entire luxury hotel and traveling by 30-car motorcade. A Japanese TV network showed what it said was Kim on a river cruise.

On Monday, pro-Beijing newspapers in Hong Kong said Kim's armored train was carrying him to the Chinese capital to meet President Hu Jintao, who was expected to prod Kim to return to six-nation talks aimed at ending North Korea's nuclear programs.

Despite its early economic focus, the key to Kim's trip could be the Kim wants to persuade Hu to keep aid flowing and to resist U.S. pressure to stop North Korean banking activities in China, the analyst said. North Korea needs to keep Chinese money coming in, he said.

The communist leader, who rarely travels abroad, is believed to have entered China Jan. 3, his first reported trip to the North's only major ally since 2004. (AP)

In Liberia, A Historic Oath of Office

Africa's first elected female leader vows to break cycle of violence

MONROVIA, LIBERIA | Africa's first elected female head of state Ellen Johnson Sirleaf was sworn in Monday as war-battered Liberia's new president, promising a "fundamental break" with the West African nation's violent past and pledging to rebuild.

With first lady Laura Bush and Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice on hand in a show of support, the moment was met with loud applause from thousands of guests.

"We recognize this change is not a change for change's sake, but a fundamental break with the past," the 67-year-old Sirleaf said in her inaugural address.

SWORN IN: Liberian President Ellen Johnson Sirleaf promised a "fundamental break" with the country's violent past during her inauguration in Monrovia Monday.

Founded by freed American slaves in 1847, Liberia was prosperous for more than a century, bolstered by timber and diamond wealth. But back-to-back civil wars from 1989 to 2003 brought the country to its knees, killing 200,000 people and displacing half the nation's population.

It is now one of the world's poorest countries, ranked 206th in per capita income out of 208 countries on the 2004 World Bank list.

Ensuring Liberia remains peaceful, though, will be Sirleaf's most pressing — and perhaps most difficult — task.

George Weah, the soccer star who lost the November runoff, was backed by most of the country's top warlords. He grudgingly accepted defeat and attended the inauguration. HANS NICHOLS (AP)

Relatives Say Sharon Briefly Opens His Eyes

JERUSALEM | Prime Minister Ariel Sharon briefly opened his eyes Monday in response to a recording of his grandson's voice, relatives told doctors, though hospital officials warned there were no signs that the comatose Israeli leader was any closer to regaining consciousness.

Sharon has been lying unconscious at Hadassah Hospital since his Jan. 4 stroke. Although doctors say his condition remains "critical but stable," outside experts have said Sharon's failure to awaken bodes poorly for his recovery.

With Sharon unlikely to return, his Kadima Party on Monday chose acting Prime Minister Ehud Olmert to stand in as party leader in the March 28 election. (AP)

GETTING BY: Iraqis wait in line to receive a government allowance Monday in Baghdad as news emerged about the electoral panel's decision to back poll results.

Panel Finds Iraqi Vote Results Valid

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Iraq's electoral commission ruled Monday that more than 99 percent of the ballots from the Dec. 15 parliamentary elections are valid, opening the way for a new government to start coming together.

Final election results have been delayed by fraud complaints mainly lodged by the Sunni Arab minority, and groups looking for a political edge in dealing with the Shiite Muslim majority could still make further protests and hold up the naming of new leaders for two or three months.

Iraq's electoral commission announced it was throwing out votes from 227 ballot boxes because of fraud, a tiny percentage — less than 1 percent — of the total vote that shouldn't affect the overall results of the poll.

Complaints by Sunni Arab and secular Shiite parties charging voting fraud and other irregularities have delayed announcement of final results, impeding negotiations on forming a new, broad-based coalition government.

Hussein Hendawi, an official on the election commission, said uncertified election results should be released in four to five days, which will give the various parties a good idea of how many seats they will get in the new 275-member parliament.

Hendawi said election officials annulled some ballot boxes because fake ballots were used, while the votes of about 53 boxes were thrown out because too many votes were cast. PATRICK QUINN (AP)

U.S. Helicopter Crashes in Iraq, Killing 2 Aboard

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | A U.S. military helicopter crashed north of the Iraqi capital Monday — the third American chopper to go down in 10 days — killing the two crew members. A resident said he saw the smoke trail of a missile before the aircraft plunged to the ground.

The military said the AH-64 Apache was conducting a combat air patrol when it went down in an area "known for terrorist activity." Officials said it was too early to determine the cause of the crash.

Video footage shot by AP Television News showed smoke billowing from what was reported to be the crash site. Two militant groups claimed they shot down the helicopter but neither claim could be verified. (AP)

Slave Cabin Deeded to Md.

Building was home to man who inspired 'Uncle Tom's Cabin'

BETHESDA, MD. | On the day set aside to honor a civil rights pioneer, an important piece of history dating back to slavery was slated for preservation.

The original Uncle Tom's Cabin was officially deeded to the Maryland National Capital Parks and Planning Commission on Monday. The slave cabin was once home to Josiah Henson, the inspiration for Harriet Beecher Stowe's title character in the abolitionist novel "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

The autobiography "The Life of Josiah Henson, Formerly a Slave" was published in 1849. Three years later, Stowe's novel helped focus world attention on the brutality of slavery.

Stowe based her characterization of "Uncle Tom" in part on experiences Henson described in his narrative. It detailed his life as a slave in Maryland and Kentucky and his 1830 decision to flee to Canada with his family after his owner refused to allow him to buy his freedom.

"Montgomery, Maryland, was as much a part of the slave culture as Montgomery, Alabama," said Rep. Chris Van Hollen, D-Md. DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

Despite Move, Project At Walter Reed Starts

5 years before hospital will leave D.C., center for amputees to go up

WASHINGTON | Even though Walter Reed Army Medical Center is slated to close in five years, construction is expected to begin this spring on a state-of-the-art rehabilitation center for amputee soldiers.

The $10 million Military Amputee Training Center — originally expected to open last month — was caught in limbo during the Pentagon's base closing process.

Ground was broken in 2004 on Walter Reed's campus in Northwest D.C., but construction had not yet begun last May when the Army ordered a hold on all projects that could be affected by the Base Realignment and Closure Commission.

A waiver was granted in September to continue work on the project. A contractor should be selected for design and construction by the end of March, with construction to be completed in September 2007, said a spokesman for the Army Corps of Engineers.

Walter Reed officials still expect the 30,000-square-foot addition to the military hospital to include a running track, climbing and rappelling wall and virtual-reality center, as well as a military vehicle simulator. It will combine both new and existing counseling, occupational, and physical therapy services for amputees. BRETT ZONGKER (AP)

In Address, New Gov. Lays Out Plan

Kaine tells lawmakers transportation is most pressing issue in state

RICHMOND, VA. | Newly inaugurated Gov. Timothy M. Kaine made the case for more transportation cash Monday but promised to veto any bill that would raise roads and rails money unless transportation funds are shielded from use elsewhere.

In his first State of the Commonwealth address, Kaine also sought legislation giving localities the zoning power to slow development if it overwhelms local transportation, public safety and utility systems and to allow localities to exempt up to 20 percent of a house's value from personal property taxes, all pledges made during his campaign.

Kaine, a Democrat, also asked the Republican-run General Assembly to preserve major funding provisions in former Gov. Mark R. Warner's final budget, particularly outlays for expanding research and development at state colleges and universities, $232 million for Chesapeake Bay cleanup and an unprecedented allocation of nearly $500 million for mental health.

Gov. Tim Kaine addressed Virginia lawmakers in Richmond on Monday.

The speech, however, was dominated by transportation needs, which he defined as the most urgent need before the state. And it ended a day in which the House of Delegates outlined its transportation priorities in a news release.

"The message from Virginia is clear: It is time for action," Kaine said, referring to 11 town hall-style meetings he held across the state since his Nov. 8 election.

RICHMOND, VA. | A state Senate committee on Monday killed a plan that proposed a moratorium on Virginia executions until scientific testing on evidence is so standard and universally applied that there is no chance the innocent are executed.

Land Preservation Funding Restored

Budget gains prompt Md.'s Ehrlich to spend more on environment

ANNAPOLIS, MD. | After using land preservation funds to help balance the budget the last three years, Gov. Robert Ehrlich will take advantage of the state's improved fiscal condition to restore full funding to the program in the budget he will submit to the legislature on Wednesday.

Ehrlich announced Monday that his budget will include $258 million for Program Open Space, the state's basic land preservation program that uses taxes paid when property is sold to protect land from development and provide parks and recreation areas.

The governor also will set aside $115 million for two agricultural land preservation programs, making a total of $373 million for land preservation efforts next year.

In addition, he said his budget will include $144.5 million for other environmental projects, including money to improve sewage treatment plants, encourage use of renewable energy, improve waterways and help farmers plant cover crops and transport manure so it will not pollute waterways. # Tired of Smoking Cigarettes?

Have you tried to quit on your own, but had trouble succeeding?

How about getting some help with quitting by using new low and nicotine-free cigarettes as a step to becoming smoke free.

The Lombardi Comprehensive Cancer Center at Georgetown University is seeking participants for a research study that examines this novel approach to quitting smoking. Participants will be assigned to a cigarette group or to a nicotine lozenge group. The lozenge group will be asked to quit smoking during the next 12 weeks. Participants in the cigarette group will smoke the new cigarettes for 6 weeks. They will be asked not to smoke any other brand of cigarette during this time, and then they will be asked to quit smoking for the next 6 weeks. We will provide participants with free cigarettes and lozenges. The study will also look at the health effects of these products. You may be eligible to participate in this study if you are 18-70 years old, motivated to quit smoking, in good physical and mental health, willing to commit to 12 clinic visits over a 14 week period, willing to fast overnight on some visits, and have your blood drawn. The clinic is located in Washington, D.C., on Wisconsin Avenue, in the Glover Park neighborhood. Parking is available and there is easy Metro Bus access.

Mind at Ease

Researchers working to develop pill to help post-trauma disorder

DRUGS | Suppose you could erase bad memories from your mind. Suppose your brain could be wiped clean of sad and traumatic thoughts.

That is science fiction. But real-world scientists are working on the next best thing: They have been testing a pill that, when given after a traumatic event such as rape, may make the resulting memories less painful and intense.

Will it work? It's too soon to say. Still, it is not far-fetched to think that such a drug someday may be passed out, along with blankets and food, at emergency shelters after disasters such as the tsunami or Hurricane Katrina.

Psychiatrist Hilary Klein could have offered it to a man she treated at a St. Louis shelter last year. He had fled New Orleans and was so distraught over not knowing where his sisters were that others had to tell Klein his story.

"This man could not even give his name, he was in such distress. All he could do was cry," she said.

Such people often develop post-traumatic stress disorder, or

James McGaugh, left, and Larry Cahill are working at the University of California, Irvine, to develop a pill that would ease the pain of vivid post-traumatic memories.

PTSD, a problem first recognized in Vietnam War veterans. Only 14 percent to 24 percent of trauma victims experience long-term PTSD, but sufferers have flashbacks and physical symptoms that make them feel as if they are reliving the trauma years after it occurred.

Scientists think it happens because the brain goes haywire during and right after a strongly emotional event, pouring out stress hormones that help store these memories in a different way than normal ones are preserved. Taking a drug to tamp down these chemicals might blunt memory formation and prevent PTSD, they theorize.

Some doctors have an even more ambitious goal: trying to cure PTSD. They are deliberately triggering very old bad memories and then giving the pill to deep-six them.

The first study to test this approach on 19 longtime PTSD sufferers has provided early encouraging results, Canadian and Harvard University researchers report.

"We figure we need to test about 10 more people until we've got solid evidence," said Alain Brunet, a psychologist at McGill University in Montreal who is leading the study.

Potent Pepper Painkiller

Substance related to chemical in chiles is subject of NIH study

CHEMICALS | The dog hopped on three legs, pain from bone cancer so bad that he wouldn't put his afflicted fourth paw on the floor. His owner was expecting euthanasia when scientists offered a novel experiment: They injected a fiery sap from a Moroccan plant into Scooter's spine — and the dog frolicked on all fours again for several months.

The chemical destroyed nerves that sensed pain from Scooter's cancer, not fighting the tumor but making him no longer really feel it.

The effect in dogs has researchers from the National Institutes of Health preparing to test the chemical in people whose pain from advanced cancer is unrelieved by even the strongest narcotics.

The first human study could begin by next year, at the NIH's Bethesda hospital. If the research pans out, it might one day offer doctors, and veterinarians, a new approach to attack intractable pain. And it's from an unlikely source, a more potent cousin of the chemical that makes chile peppers hot.

Why would something that seems to burn your tongue relieve pain?

This fiery chemical, called resiniferatoxin, poisons nerves that control heat-related, inflammatory pain, eliminating the pain-sensing system. Yet it doesn't seem to harm other nerves that sense pain.

"It just selectively targets," said Dr. Andrew Mannes, an NIH anesthesiologist. LAURAN NEERGAARD (AP)

RAY RETURN? Ray Brown, the 43-year-old offensive lineman for the Redskins, is, in fact, retiring after his 20th season. But coach Joe Gibbs said he expects Brown to remain in the organization in some capacity to be determined at a later date.

Redskins Optimistic About Future

Fates of Arrington, Ramsey are key issues of upcoming offseason

REDSKINS | The Washington Redskins stuffed their belongings into huge plastic bags, exchanged hugs and phone numbers, took their physicals and attended one final round of meetings Monday before heading into the offseason.

The ritual is the same every year, but this time most of the faces were bright and full of optimism. Buoyed by the team's first playoff run in six years, some players sounded as if they couldn't wait for their upcoming vacations to end so they could return to work and help take the team even further next season.

"We've really set ourselves up for a good stretch here," right tackle Jon Jansen said. "We set a good foundation, and that's something we can build on."

Coach Joe Gibbs' message to the players was similarly upbeat. He said he wanted to keep his key players — unlike last year, when Antonio Pierce and Fred Smoot departed via free agency — and said the confidence gained from this season's success could lead to better things next season. He then met individually with most of the impending free agents, a list that includes only two regular starters: safety Ryan Clark and tight end Robert Royal.

"I think we've got a core group to build around," Gibbs said.

One player not in that core group is quarterback Patrick Ramsey, who lost the starting job in the first half of the first game. With Mark Brunell returning as the starter and first-round pick Jason Campbell the heir apparent, Ramsey declined to answer when asked Monday whether he wants to be back.

"I'd like to play," Ramsey said. "If I'm going to develop as a quarterback in this league and play well, I think it needs to start at some point soon. ... We'll see what happens."

Interestingly, Gibbs said he did not meet with LaVar Arrington, whose future is also uncertain. The three-time Pro Bowl linebacker reiterated the remarks he made following Saturday's game, when he said he wanted to return and expressed some regrets for criticizing the team publicly during this season. He also said he is open to reworking a contract that currently stands to count approximately $12 million against the salary cap next season. But Gibbs was noncommittal. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

REDSKINS | BY MATT SWENSON

Time to Mark Campbell's Era

IF THE REDSKINS had any offense at all on Saturday, we wouldn't be looking ahead to next season. But they didn't, so here we are.

Now it's time to thank Mark Brunell for a renaissance year in which he showed the leadership, smarts and effort that got the Redskins into the playoffs. It's also time to bench him in favor of Jason Campbell.

Brunell broke down late in the season and never recovered. And while a couple of breaks could have changed the outcome in Seattle, the most obvious problem with the team was that it didn't have a quarterback capable of making key plays.

Brunell's age and performance

Campbell's size ... and college success make him look like a good bet.

since coming to Washington suggest he doesn't have a full season in him anymore. Patrick Ramsey almost certainly won't be back, and that leaves the kid as the best alternative.

The Redskins thought so highly of Campbell that they traded away this year's No. 1 draft pick to take him last April. His inexperience could mean a step back next year. But if the Redskins were right about the former Auburn standout, it would be worth it to build for the future.

Campbell's size, arm strength and college success make him look like a good bet. Coach Joe Gibbs can keep Brunell as the backup, ready to fill in should Campbell falter.

Regardless, with Clinton Portis, Santana Moss and that defense, the Redskins should be in playoff contention until Campbell catches up to the rest of the offense.

Panthers Move On Without Foster

NFL | DeShaun Foster pushed the passenger side door open and gently eased himself out of the car, carefully balancing his weight to keep pressure off his broken right leg.

A guard offered to get him a golf cart, but Foster refused and stoically proceeded on crutches toward the player's entrance at Bank of America Stadium.

"I'm doing OK," he said, his voice barley above a whisper. "I'll be OK."

Foster will indeed eventually be OK.

But Monday, Carolina's featured running back was still dealing with the emotions of yet another season-ending injury.

Foster broke his fibula when he was tackled in the third quarter of Sunday's NFC divisional playoff win over Chicago.

He'll need surgery to repair it, but will hold off on the procedure so he can accompany the team to Seattle and play cheerleader during the NFC championship game.

"He's obviously down," Panthers head coach John Fox said. "He worked very hard to get himself and ourselves to this position, and I think like most guys he's disappointed."

The running back job will go to Nick Goings, who admirably filled in last year when Carolina lost five running backs to injuries.

Elevated from sixth on the depth chart to starter, Goings settled in with five 100-yard rushing games and finished the year with 821 yards and six touchdowns.

Serena survives scare after Venus loses at the Australian Open

TENNIS | Serena Williams consoled her sister, telling Venus to look at it this way: She gets to go home. A few hours later, Serena was almost ready herself to start packing for the long flight.

In danger of an early exit from the Australian Open, defending champ Serena Williams got a bit of a scare in the second set before dispatching 52nd-ranked Li Na of China.

Venus Williams had no such luck. The Wimbledon champion sprayed 65 unforced errors Monday in her 2-6, 6-0, 9-7 first-round loss to Bulgaria's Tszvetana Pironkova.

Serena didn't have it in her to watch the match — she said it made her too nervous. Between their matches, however, she offered Venus some comfort.

Serena won 6-3, 6-7 (1),

WIZARDS | Gilbert Arenas and the Wizards have been playing unselfishly during their season-high winning streak.

Arenas had 22 points and a season-high 12 assists as the Washington held Philadelphia to its lowest point total of the season in a 104-76 rout on Monday.

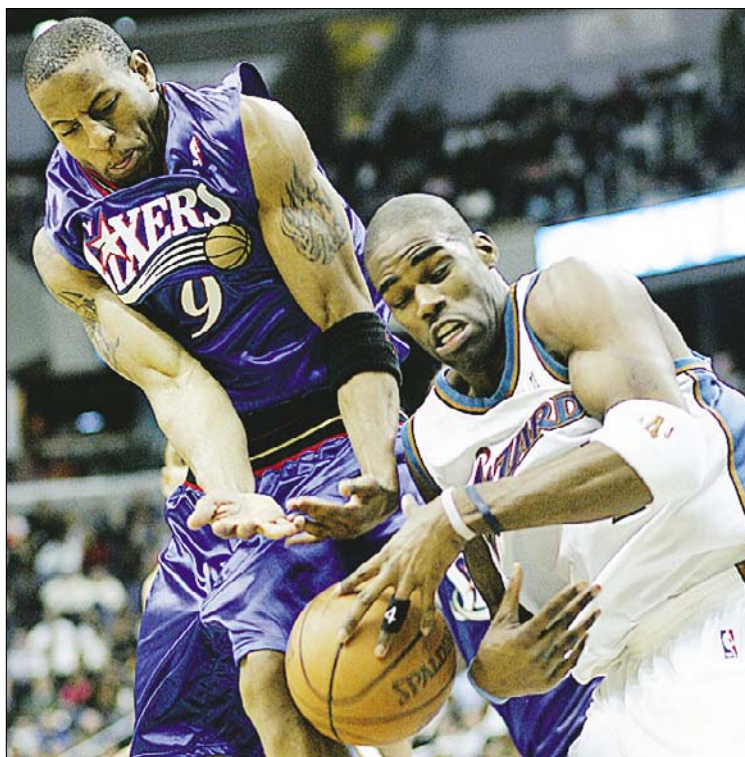

"For the last three or four games, that's what we've been doing," Arenas said of the Wizards' 22 assists. "The scorers are going to get their touches, but just making that extra pass makes it easier for us."

Caron Butler led the Wizards with 23 points and Antawn Jamison added 21 points and 10 rebounds for his 16th double-double of the season as Washington won a fourth straight game.

"Today there was a collective effort," Wizards coach Eddie Jordan said. "We are riding the momentum that we started three games ago. Caron did a really good job defensively. He is really embracing the role that we assigned him as the defensive captain, and we are just riding a wave right now."

The Wizards also handed the 76ers their largest losing margin of the season.

Somehow, the 20-year-old Russian left wing kept the net in mind after Coyotes defenseman Paul Mara knocked him down coming through the circle. Ovechkin sent the puck into the net at a sharp angle, handcuffing Boucher who stood up believing the threat was past.

The two goals gave Ovechkin an NHL rookie-high 32 goals this season and five in two games.

Steelers Revel in the Great Escape

A day after a thrilling win in Indy, Pittsburgh has Super Bowl hopes

NFL | They overcame a bungled call and a fumbled ball, and now the Pittsburgh Steelers are headed to their sixth and least-anticipated trip to the AFC championship game in a dozen years under coach Bill Cowher.

The difference this time is the road they're taking, a route they've never traveled in their 73-year history but one that is bringing out the best in a team that in recent years has played its worst in mid-January.

To reach Sunday's AFC championship game in Denver, the Steelers withstood a late-season three-game losing streak that left them without a home playoff game — and the biggest breakdown The Bus has ever had.

After going 100-1-1 in regular-season games under Cowher when leading by 10 points or more, only what may be remembered as the Great Escape allowed the Steelers to get this far.

"We all believed we can get this

Ben Roethlisberger's trip saved the season for the Steelers on Sunday.

done," wide receiver Hines Ward said. "We all believe."

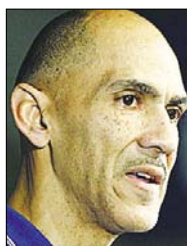

But would anybody have believed all this?

After underachieving so many times before in the playoffs — remember the AFC title-game collapse against the Chargers in January 1995, and the twin failures in 2002 and 2005 against the Patriots? — these Steelers are overachieving like never before.

Until this season, the Steelers had won only two road playoff games in 30 years, none under Cowher. Now they've won two in two weeks, including a 21-18 heart-stopper of an upset Sunday in Indianapolis that almost featured one of the most amazing collapses in NFL playoff history.

"Maybe this is the way to do it," Cowher said of going on the road in the playoffs rather than playing at home, where they are only 1-4 in AFC title games under him. "We haven't been too successful the other way." ALAN ROBINSON (AP)

League: Ref Blew Interception Call

NFL | The NFL said the referee made a mistake: Troy Polamalu caught the ball.

The league acknowledged Monday that referee Pete Morelli erred when he overturned on replay Polamalu's interception of a Peyton Manning pass Sunday in the playoff game between Pittsburgh and Indianapolis.

After the reversal, the Colts went on to score a touchdown and a 2-point conversion, cutting the Steelers' 21-10 lead to 21-18. That led to a wild final few minutes and Pittsburgh clinched its win only when the Colts' Mike Vanderjagt missed a 46-yard field-goal attempt.

After the game, Pittsburgh linebacker Joey Porter said of the ruling: "I know they wanted Indy to win this game; the whole world loves Peyton Manning. But come on, man, don't take the game away from us like that."

NFL spokesman Greg Aiello had no comment on Porter's statement. DAVE GOLDBERG (AP)

Entertainment

BRING THE KIDS: The animated fairy tale "Hoodwinked" and the inspirational sports flick "Glory Road" topped a family-oriented box office for the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday weekend. A new Queen Latifah movie, "Last Holiday," opened in third place.

LEFT BEHIND: After the departure of guitarist/co-founder Brian "Head" Welch, Korn was forced to re-think its dedication.

At a Crossroads

A genetically altered Korn attempts to break new ground

RECONFIGURATIONS | As Korn entered its 11th year last year, the rap-metal pioneers were in the throes of a mid-life crisis.

Korn's co-founder and guitarist, Brian "Head" Welch, left the band — a shining example of debauchery and deviance — to devote his life to Jesus Christ. Meanwhile, Korn left its longtime record label and started working with the Matrix, producers known for making hits for pop princesses.

"It felt like the band was very fragile," said guitarist James "Munky" Shaffer, speaking of the period after Welch's departure. "There was a moment where we didn't know how we were going to continue."

The moment was short-lived, however. "We decided, 'We can end this, or we can use this opportunity and reinvent what we do,'" said Shaffer.

Korn's latest, "See You on the Other Side," marks the first album without Welch, but singer Jonathan Davis says Welch's heavy drug use had kept him at a distance for some time.

"We were watching the guy kill himself. Everybody was worried, but he didn't want any help from us," said Davis. "The only time we saw him was when he was on stage ... We were really excited he was going to clean up, but it went downhill from there." Davis is also a critic of organized religion, griping that "Christians are the most hypocritical of all religions."

On his Web site, headtochrist.com, Welch talks about God delivering him from a life of sin and criticizes the band for their drive for commercial success. Korn's latest album could be seen as evidence for that criticism. Shaffer and Davis say it isn't an attempt to "go pop," but an attempt to update their sound.

"We had experienced rock producers," said Shaffer. "So we wanted to turn to someone in a different genre to bring out something in us, to push us in a different direction."

"Other Side," does add a melodic vibe to the band's metal and hip-hop-influenced sound.

"It's still Korn, but it's different," said Davis. "It's a new Korn-heaviness. It's very different from what we'd done before."

Shaffer says he still misses playing with Welch, and calls him an inspiration, but both Davis and Shaffer say his departure brought the band closer and made it a better musical unit.

"It forced me to become a better musician, it forced the band to become stronger," said Shaffer.

Go Ahead, Take Out the Trash

Morningwood is having too much fun to be classy or subtle

MUSIC | Low-key it ain't, but then subtlety is hardly the point of Morningwood's self-titled full-length debut. It's a riotous collection of scuzzy rock 'n' roll songs, some of which have appeared on the band's independently released EPs.

Like Louis XIV last year, Morningwood revels in double entendre and glam-rock guitar riffs. Unlike those San Diego hedonists, Morningwood has singer Chantal Claret. She alternates between cutesy good girl and raucous sex fiend, singing with coquettish allure on "Nth Degree" and growling out commands on "Take Off Your Clothes" as bassist Pedro Yanowitz counters that maybe they should "get a little more acquainted."

The lyrics aren't as filthy-witty as Louis XIV's, but Claret makes good use of baby-sitter fantasies on Singer Chantal Claret, center, keeps her good-girl/bad-girl balance.

"Babysitter" and declares with over-sexed insolence, "My body's 21 but my mind is ageless," on "Body 21."

Synthesizers play a supporting role, but these 11 songs mostly focus on guitar riffs that are as raw as a skinned knee. Guitars buzz and froth on "Televisor" and sting hard enough to raise welts on "Easy." It's trashy, low-brow entertainment — what else would you expect from a band called Morningwood? — but it's a lot of fun. ERIC R. DANTON

Mystery Woman

P.D. James' detective series continues to thrill and surprise fans

GENRE FICTION | What comes first, murder or motive?

"What usually comes first is the setting," said mystery author P.D. James. "I can have what I think is a strong response to the spirit of a place."

Her latest mystery, "The Lighthouse," is set on a remote, treeless island. The book features the author's Scotland Yard detective, Commander Adam Dalgleish. The jazz-loving detective, who also writes poetry, and his team are sent to Combe Island, an uber resort off the Cornwall coast for government officials who need a break from their very public lives. A gruesome murder takes place.

The plot largely unspools in less than a week but much of the action occurs over a 24-hour period. This is no easy task, because there are many characters to weave in as well as multiple motives for the murder of an aging writer.

Readers are kept guessing until the murder is solved and, unlike much detective fiction, nothing is left unexplained. All the pieces of the puzzle fit perfectly. To make it all work, James' intricate plots can take a year to plan.

After setting, characters are next in importance and the method of murder usually comes last, James said.

MURDER MOST BRITISH: The mystery author P.D. James takes her detective Adam Dalgleish to a remote island to solve a murder in "The Lighthouse."

"The essentials — who's been killed, why, where, how and by whom — come very gradually. The murder itself depends on the character. The method and the motive are absolutely linked," she said.

In "The Lighthouse," Dalgleish views a murder weapon, mulling the banality of such tools: "This was the reaction he had experienced before when contemplating a murder weapon: the ordinariness of steel, wood and rope and their terrible power."

While a mystery can offer clues to a society's concerns of a certain period, conjuring up a good mystery in the post-9/11 world may be getting tougher.

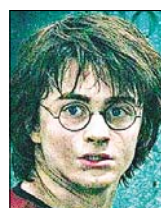

"It makes it more difficult," James said. "All of us have experienced the reality of it. That makes fiction somehow less powerful. The reality is so powerful. We are all living with the reality."

A Magical British Box Office

NUMBERS | The magic of Harry Potter helped boost British films' box office clout last year to its highest level in a decade, according to figures released Monday.

The U.K. Film Council said British films accounted for 34 percent of domestic box office takings in 2005, up from 23 percent in 2004. Eight British films were among the year's 20 highest-grossing films.

Daniel Radcliffe

"Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire" was the year's top earner, taking 47.6 million pounds — about $84.1 million — in British cinemas.

Other British winners were "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory," and "Wallace & Gromit: The Curse of the Were-Rabbit," "Nanny McPhee," "Batman Begins," "Pride and Prejudice," "The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy" and "Valiant" were all in the Top 20.

Films which do not originate in Britain are classed as British by the council if they meet criteria relating to location of shoot, the presence of British talent and the percentage of the budget spent in Britain. (AP)

Hip to Be Square

CBS' 'Love Monkey' tries to hang with the cool apes, and fails

DEBUT | If there's one thing that irritates hipster indie-music fans, it's pseudo-hipster indie-music fans. Music snobs will find much to curl their upper lips at over "Love Monkey" (10 p.m.), CBS' new play to nab the whippersnappers.

Tom Cavanaugh stars as Tom, a white thirtysomething single record-label talent-finder who is fired for giving a Jerry McGuire-esque speech about how record labels should care more about music than the business. (You'll jump out of your seat and applaud his principles! Or, you won't!) Also like McGuire, Tom forms his own competing company, focusing mainly on trying to sign "Wayne," a cheap John Mayer imitation played by true-life cheap John Mayer imitation Teddy Geiger.

For a judgmental music freak, Tom sure talks a lot about bands that audience members are sure to recognize, mentioning Billy Joel, Tori Amos, Metallica, Jewel, the Ramones, the Sex Pistols, Tori Amos, Air Supply and Bob Dylan. And for a record exec, he seems pretty much ignorant of, well, any music act a TV screenwriter wouldn't be comfortable pitching to execs at the Tiffany network.

While geared toward the younger crowd, "Love Monkey" strives to stick to material that falls within the comfort level of the younger crowd's parents. But hey, that's CBS. They and their "Love Monkey" are like, total loser corporate mainstream posers. CHRIS MINCHER (EXPRESS)

The Next Face You See

Suddenly, Seth Green is everywhere on TV

FAMILIAR FACES | For years, Seth Green has been popping up across the media horizon like Bugs Bunny from his countless rabbit holes.

Right now, Green's work is in the sights of TV viewers on no fewer than three shows.

On the animated "Family Guy," he furnishes the whine of slothful teen Chris. On "Robot Chicken," his handiwork is evident as a creator, producer, director, writer and voice artist behind the animated sketch-comedy.

And on his new NBC sitcom, "Four Kings," Green plays one of four twentysomething chums between college and adulthood.

But for Green, 31, these are just the latest credits in a long career. At 10 he landed his first film assignment: "Hotel New Hampshire," with Jodie Foster. Later film roles include "Can't Hardly Wait" and all three "Austin Powers" comedies. On TV, he was a werewolf on "Buffy the Vampire Slayer."

Along the way, Green decided that vying for good roles wasn't the only way to get ahead.

"I realized how much is my responsibility to make happen,"

GREEN DAY: Versatile actor Seth Green is having his moment in the TV spotlight.

MITCH HAASETH/NBC/AP

he explained. "I shopped "Robot Chicken" around for over three years, and I can't tell you how many times we heard 'This is not for us,' before we got to the Cartoon Network.

"I always wanted to get into writing, directing and producing by my 30s," he said, "and this show is a great environment to test my skills and develop them — in private." His "Robot Chicken" action-figure stars make few demands, throw even fewer tantrums, and never squawk to the press about problems on the set.

Understandably, Green is pleased with his career.

"I love having gotten this far and having nobody label me too specifically," he said with a grin, "and without being the prey of the paparazzi. Nobody cares about my private life."

The Loudest Song

'American Idol' continues to drown out the competition

RETURN | Behold, the reason NBC's fabulous freshmen, "My Name Is Earl" and "The Office," fled to Thursday. For shows whose success is precious to a floundering network, nestling into a (sporadically) safe berth beats cowering under the descending shadow of an 800-lb. gorilla.

That hairy beast, "American Idol" (8 p.m., Fox) returns tonight and, zombielike, fans and the curious will tune in for the jaw-dropping atrocity and then stick around for the odd sense of attachment this show inspires among the audience and certain performers.

But all that's in the future: Once again, Fox teases, taunts and torments us with endless wacky auditions on the way to the competition. Expect costumes, bad singing, weeping, roller-skates (we peeked) and the usual Paula weirdness.

Can you believe this is the fifth season of the aesthetic equivalent of a cheap strawberry milkshake? What a lot of time fans of this show have wasted, and we count ourselves among them. Around the time it debuted in early 2001, weren't you thinking of writing a novel or researching cancer or something? Now would be a perfect time to get to it. ARION BERGER (EXPRESS)

ON TV TONIGHT

THE NUCLEAR OPTION

COMMANDER IN CHIEF (9 p.m., ABC) unleashes a two-parter tonight in an episode breezily titled "No Nukes Is Good Nukes." The outside threat is North Korea, but the real meltdown is when President Mac (Geena Davis) clashes with slithering Speaker of the House Nathan Templeton (Donald Sutherland).

MOTHER AND LAW

LAW & ORDER: SPECIAL VICTIMS UNIT
(10 p.m., NBC) A baby found in the trash leads to a twisty story of rape, responsibility and connections on a heart-wrenching episode.

PAST IMPERFECT

THE SHIELD (10 p.m., FX) It's appalling how the writers of this sterling cop drama

make the audience feel for complicated not-quite white knight Vic. Tonight, he veers close to getting cornered for that little murder/setup incident.

Mayor spearheading new campaign to slim down the Big Apple

When New York mayor Michael Bloomberg sat down to lunch with children during a school visit a few years ago, he was disgusted by the soggy, greasy fries and other junk on their plates.

He pushed for a revamp of school menus and, by the start of the next school year, fat-laden meals were being replaced by healthier versions. That same year, 2003, the city began handing out free nicotine patches and Bloomberg won his crusade to outlaw smoking in bars and restaurants.

Now the city is going after high-calorie foods in bodegas, restaurants and company cafeterias.

Experts say Bloomberg — a bit of a health nut himself — has targeted unhealthy lifestyles unlike any other administration before him.

Bloomberg likes golf, not gross food.

"It's more aggressive than we've ever seen in the past," said Allan Rosenfield, dean of Columbia University's Mailman School of Public Health. "There's a willingness to take on unpopular but important issues."

More than 53 percent of New Yorkers are overweight or obese — lower than the ballooning national 65 percent, but far too high, according to Bloomberg and his health commissioner, Thomas Frieden. Being overweight raises the risk of diabetes, high blood pressure, cancer and heart disease, which is New York's worst killer.

Last summer, the health department launched a campaign against trans-fats. Often used by restaurants and in packaged foods, trans-fats are thought to cause cholesterol problems and increase the risk of heart disease.

After restaurant inspectors found that 30 percent of the city's 30,000 eateries were using oils that contain trans-fats, the department began urging a citywide "oil change." Officials sent letters to food service operators and started teaching workers about trans-fats along with their required food safety training.

Officials next want to tackle portion sizes.

Towering pastrami sandwiches, bagels with gooey schmears of cream cheese and pizza slices that spill over paper plates may be the city's culinary landmarks, but the health department says the Big Apple is out of control.

Health officials are also trying to teach restaurants how to make healthier meals. "The biggest hazards from what you eat are not food poisoning but the caloric load," said Dr. Lynn Silver, an assistant health commissioner. SARA KUGLER (AP)

Ex-problem pooches sent to charm school with adoption hopes

Lie down. Roll over. Sit up. Give me a paw.

The pet tricks are so simple they couldn't even qualify as "stupid" on television, but for the pooches performing them last week at the ASPCA's charm school in New York, they could be a ticket to adoption.

That was, after all, the purpose and the hope for which trainers and handlers put Porky, Basil, Tuffy, Negrita, Newman, Spencer, Tiny Tim and Mister Pink through their paces. All are former problem dogs, retrained at the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals' Manhattan shelter after being rescued or legally seized from abusive or neglectful owners.

One after another, the dogs bounded forth, tails wagging, and obeyed the commands as if they had never been kicked, starved, isolated or, in the cases of Tuffy and Negrita, confined in a four-room apartment with 27 other dogs and forced to survive on a diet of popcorn.

The ASPCA called the charm school event a "showcase to display what our dogs have learned."

Tuffy, who once lived with 27 other dogs on a popcorn diet, high-fives his trainer.

"They are available for adoption, but they are much more adoptable if they have some tricks," said Victoria Wells, manager of shelter behavior and training.

Most dogs and cats are adopted within two years, workers said. But socialization is the key, especially for dogs acquired from collectors or hoarders who often have more animals than they can care for, said ASPCA vice president Gail Buchwald.

Tiny Tim pranced in on three legs, having had a rear leg amputated at the shelter due to multiple pelvic fractures that could not be repaired. Mister Pink, a formerly malnourished American bulldog named for the rosy cast of his white fur, sat erectly at attention amid cheers for his performance. All were rewarded with liver-based dog treats.

The appreciative audience consisted entirely of ASPCA employees and volunteers. Wells and Trish McMillan, who brought the charm school idea from her former job at the Richmond, Va., SPCA shelter, conceded it might be better to showcase the dogs in a more public setting.

No speeches were required as to why the dogs needed rescue from neglect and abuse in the first place.

"There are a lot of different reasons," said Jennifer Lander, the shelter's veterinarian. "Some of it really is malice. Sometimes it's just ignorance, or people don't have the resources available to them even though they know they should be doing something."

What makes her job so rewarding, she said, is knowing that "these dogs have a great life here and it's only going to get better when they're adopted." RICHARD PYLE (AP)

REPORT

Brazilian design team Carmelitas embellished camisole necklines with aged ribbon, lace trim and shreds of ripped organza. These were paired with knee-length cut-off jeans.

to Capri.

Santa Ephigenia's design duo Marco Maia and Luciano Canale claimed no particular inspiration for their fall-winter 2006 collection, but a longing for pre-war Rio was evident. They opened with panache, sending out Caroline Trentini in striking black cable knot mini dress bedecked in a score of black metallic chains. Maia and Canale know how to keep things simple, and thus avoid the biggest weakness of Brazilian designers — over-elaboration.

The pair are also smart colorists — they picked the right hues of dusky gold, faded beige and a wonderful Roman Imperial purple that appeared on suede 1950s belts, laser-cut topcoats in cashmere mixes and a rather brilliant micro bolero knit jacket. But their coolest idea was using an old print (was it a late 19th century oil?) in pleated long dresses, soft handbags and stylish platform shoes.

Nowonder Regina Lundgren, the owner of the eponymously named boutique on Ipanema Beach that is this city's Colette, looked pleased. She should be. There was a lot to wear in this chic selection of clothes, and it all would look at home in Milan and Paris both on the runway and the front and Carla Gaspar, who, apart from their height, would have passed for models on their own catwalk. Their own look and the key one in the show was a combo of faded cut-off-at-the-knee jeans worn with silk camisole tops, finished with aged silver lace trim, silk ribbons and contrasting colored bras and shards of torn organza.

Karen and Carla are also skilled tailors, as their splendidly cut cashmere bolero cardigans and flower-embroidered midnight blue cocktail dresses attested. For foreign buyers this collection would make an excellent purchase — it contains all the sexy exoticism of Rio with enough sophistication to be worn from the Hamptons

The real Saint Ephigenia was probably more demure than the scantily-clad models at her namesake line's show.

Run, Run, Rio

ONE SHOULD NEVER EXPECT A FASHION REVOLUTION or any sort of new paradigm at a show in Rio de Janeiro, but for a collection of very sexy, up-to-date and highly wearable looks, one need look no further than the Carmelitas line.

One could be parsimonious in one's praise and call the fall-winter 2006 collection presented Thursday an example of Tropical Chloe. But the result was some great clothes presented in what was by far Rio's most polished show to date.

Opening the show was the theme from "Blade Runner," played by an orchestra of 20 musicians barely concealed behind an enormous black mesh curtain that ran along one side of the runway in the Museum of Modern Art. It was a brilliant piece of staging by the savvy show producer Pazetto, who in his day job is Brazil's most respected TV costume designer.

Launched just six years ago, Carmelitas is designed by two very pretty gals called Karen Tognato

Local Roundup

Post columnist MARC FISHER was online Thursday and discussed former Metro chief Richard White, Marion Barry and more. | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

I have always wondered if one of the reasons that Richmond has not been forthcoming with funds for Northern Virginia transportation needs is that there is a perception that they would be helping solve Maryland and D.C. transportation problems with Virginia tax dollars?

That's a piece of it, but the problem is deeper than that. There's a deep antipathy toward Virginia's Washington suburbs in Richmond and around the state. Lawmakers know that Northern Virginia is the state's cash cow, but they seem to feel little obligation to give anything back to this region when they're dishing out the goodies. Tim Kaine's first big challenge is finding a way to make traffic more bearable around here; he certainly seems eager to take on that task, but it'll be fascinating to see how and if he gets around the anti-Washington bias in Richmond.

Boy, oh boy! I wish that I could perform my job poorly for several years and still walk away with a severance package like [former Metro chief] Richard White has! That really burns me that we, the taxpayers, have to support him for the rest of his life. Where can I sign up?

When you find out, please let me know.

I have to say between the David Rosenbaum story and the Marion Barry story it's just more evidence why I choose NOT to live in the District. It's dysfunctional at best and downright third-world at worst.

You're only showing your own deep bias here. Rosenbaum was killed in a neighborhood that is way safer than almost any piece of any suburb within 75 miles of the District. There had not been a single murder in that area for years before this. And those who would judge the District by the antics of Marion Barry would have missed out on the colossal boom of the past decade.

When you write a book about the history of Washington, D.C., after World War II, Marion Barry would have to be the central figure of the story. Does that bother you?

Not in the least. How else would the book sell? My fellow columnist Gene Robinson and I were talking about this earlier today: If only Barry knew the extent to which he brings out the best in reporters and writers. It really is a symbiotic relationship.... He has made great use of the press over the years, right down to last month's move on the baseball stadium issue. It would make for a great book by somebody someday.

Shamrocks: Just Our Luck

UH OH, THE LUCKY CHARMS leprechaun has struck again! Page E5 of Friday's Express shows what's described as a "silver-plated shamrock" — but it's actually a silver-plated four-leaf clover. A four-leaf clover — while considered to be an omen of good luck — is not an Irish symbol; shamrocks are. Shamrocks are a type of clover that has three small leaflets, and are considered to be a national emblem of Ireland. The story is that St. Patrick was preaching in the open air on the doctrine of the trinity, and is said to have illustrated the existence of the three in one by plucking a shamrock from the grass growing at his feet and showing it to his congregation. For my Grandma O'Malley's sake, please set the record straight!

ON SAMUEL ALITO, PART I

If the Democrats nominate anyone from the D.C. Democratic establishment in 2008, they won't be getting my vote."

RONBEAS2.BLOGSPOT.COM, ANGERED WITH THE DEMOCRATS' INABILITY TO DERAIL THE NOMINATION OF SAMUEL ALITO TO THE SUPREME COURT, SEES A NEED FOR CHANGE IN THE PARTY AS A WHOLE IN ADVANCE OF THE NEXT PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION IN 2008.

THE Blog LOG

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're waiting for someone to give you a good reason to stay where you are; without that, you'll be tempted to move on — and quickly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) A conflict with a friend may sap your energy, leaving you vulnerable and unready for what lies ahead. Do what you can to ease tensions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Follow the rules and you'll be in good shape by day's end; a major delay will result from your attempts to take a shortcut.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Look to your childhood for the answers you most seek. You'll discover, much to your delight, that you know now all you did then.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The attraction you feel for a dangerous endeavor may be easily explained — and once explained, it can be easily set aside. Take no such risks.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You are inventive, but it may be up to a friend to get you to do the right things with all those ideas. You can increase profits.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may feel passed over after not receiving an invitation to a certain social event. Be glad; you have better things to do.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Bewilling to spend most of the day filling holes — that is, taking care of business you may have passed up in recent days or weeks.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Furthest out of reach is worth pursuing. Take advantage of all resources at your disposal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) There's too much work for one person to do on his or her own, so be willing to share some secrets merely to get the help you require.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) What begins in jest may end in earnest — and you're going to want to be on the right side of the issue when things heat up unexpectedly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You may be balanced precariously atop a mountain of emotional baggage of your own making. You've been trying too hard, lately.

CORRUPTION British Celebrities Are Growing So Ill-Behaved

PETE DOHERTY, the sometime boyfriend of Kate Moss, has been arrested on suspicion of possessing drugs, police said Monday — days after pleading guilty to similar charges. Doherty, lead singer of Babyshambles, was arrested while driving through east London on Saturday. Police said officers were trying to flag down another car, but Doherty pulled over. (AP)

PROPHECIES Today Cometh the Headline Too Boring to Writeth

ANTHONY HOPKINS thought Oliver Stone was kidding when the director first asked him to play Richard Nixon, he said on "This Week with George Stephanopoulos." "[Stone] said, 'Well, I want you to do it.' He said, 'I think you understand his paranoia and his insecurity.'" Hopkins was to receive the Cecil B. DeMille Award for lifetime achievement at the 63rd annual Golden Globe awards Monday. (AP)

Terrence Howard acted all suave, above. Anne Hathaway's red-as-the-carpet lipstick stopped traffic, top left. Do not adjust your sets: Jaime Pressly, of "My Name Is Earl," does, in fact, have a scary Malibu Barbie tan.

GOLDEN GLOBES!

A-Listers Attend C-List Awards

Monday night was the Golden Globes. It's so hard to get excited. The crowd looked a lot like last year (who let all those "Sideways" cast members in! Oh right, they're presenting). Alanis Morissette dyed her hair blonde. The Desperate Housewives were all like, "We're stars who toss our hair! Who!" JAIME PRESSLY made Eva Longoria look subtle, which is not easy. All the "Lost" people were there, and Natalie Portman's hair is growing out. Sigh. (EXPRESS)

Coral lipstick never recovered from this.

OH DEAR Of All the Cultural Exports ...

MICHAEL JACKSON seems to be settling into Bahrain. He has shopped for real estate, been spotted in glitzy malls — and now it appears he's interviewing for a job. The singer is negotiating a position as a consultant with a Bahrain-based company that plans to set up theme parks and music academies in the Middle East. (AP)

DEPRESSING Former Child Actor Missing

Former child actor JOE PICHLER, who appeared in two "Beethoven" comedies, was missing after leaving a note in his car expressing suicidal thoughts, relatives said. Family joined police, Kitsap County, Wash., search and rescue personnel and tracking dogs in unsuccessful efforts to find Pichler, now 18, since his empty car was found last Tuesday. (AP)
